Finally, it is North Asia's turn to outperform

During the month of October, the NAV of the AGCM China Stars Fund RC1 SEK share class increased by +3.1%.

Last week, China's leaders concluded a four-day meeting where the 14th five-year plan was finalized. The new plan has elevated China's self-reliance in technology into a national strategy, a move communicated in earlier speeches by President Xi after the US restricted high-tech exports to Huawei. Central to the plan is self-reliance in semiconductors, the building blocks for innovations from 5G telecom to Artificial Intelligence and self-driving cars.

On the corporate front, household appliance manufacturer Haier reported a healthy third quarter 2020 result on the back of a recovery in home appliance sales. Third quarter revenues rose +17% compared to the same period last year and net profit rose even faster at +38%. The recovery was strong across both the China business and overseas (Haier owns the former GE Appliances unit). Management confirmed that a merger with its Hong Kong subsidiary Haier Electronics will go ahead before year-end and that the dividend pay-out ratio will rise to 40%.

Shanghai Pharma's third quarter 2020 result suggests a continued recovery in the pharma distribution business. Revenues rose +11% year-on-year and net profit also rose +11%. The key driver behind the recovery was a resumption in hospital clinical activities after the Covid-19 shutdown earlier this year.

Alibaba associate Ant Financial is close to its IPO on November 5th, a dual listing in Hong Kong and Shanghai. Five million Chinese retail investors have signed up for the retail tranche in Shanghai, oversubscribing by a factor of 870 times the shares offered. Ant Financial is set to become the largest IPO in history, raising a total of USD 35 billion.

China Mobile's third quarter result gave early signs of optimism for the company and the sector. Revenue growth accelerated to +4.1% in the third quarter of 2020, driven by high demand for 5G plans, with a total of 114 million subscribers vs 70 million last quarter. Another driver was a +17% year-on-year growth in the number of broadband customers.

At the World Laureates Forum in Shanghai last week, where 61 Nobel Prize winners and other top global science award winners attended, the CEO of Swiss Pharmaceutical giant Novartis, praised the rapid progress China has made in the pharmaceutical industry. The CEO of Novartis, Vasant Narasimhan, said there has been tremendous progress in China with adoption of state-of-the-art technology for drug evaluation, review and approval by an independent regulatory body.

We expect a continued growing appetite by foreign investors for North Asia, mainly China, South Korea and Taiwan, which have all managed to contain Covid-19. The US and EU are caught up in internal strife with struggling economies and widening fiscal deficits. The ECB and Federal Reserve have become monetary incontinent and are forced to monetize growing fiscal deficits. North Asia outperformed the West in October and with its long-term focus, high economic growth and modest valuations, North Asia provides an attractive alternative for investors.
